Gone Are the Days

Couriers on horse back were good enough in '61 but they gave place to dispatch riders on motor cycles when Pershing flattened the St. Mihiel salient in forty-eight hours. Castor oil, salts, mineral waters, pills and such purgatives were good enough in their day. Today they are giving place to Nujol. Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels. Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant. Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Warning: Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

GENEVA MAY BE MADE CAPITAL OF NATIONS' LEAGUE

Such Choice Would Elevate City to Place Once Held in World Fight for Liberty and Democracy.

Geneva, in Switzerland, cradle of the Red Cross, birthplace of Calvinism, town of clocks and watches and sturdy independence, has been chosen by the world's headquarters, the convention city of the league of nations.

Geneva is centrally located. It is one of the most attractive cities of Europe, and it was ostensibly neutral during the great struggle. It stood as the nation's meeting place it would combine convenience with magnificent surroundings and an equable climate. From its site at the corner of one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, Lake Geneva, it commands a view of the Alps, including Mont Blanc, and the Jura, including Mont Jura, and the Jura, including Mont Jura, and the Jura, including Mont Jura.

Geneva is the capital of the canton of the same name, which contains 162 square miles—twice the area of Cleveland—and the city itself has about 130,000 inhabitants, including a goodly sized colony of foreigners.

It is a fine modern city with ancient suggestions, including a volunteer fire department—and is well equipped with the means for entertaining the army of tourists, which, until the beginning of the war, annually flocked to it. It can care for the world delegates who may be sent there, and is quite likely to erect a special peace temple for their sessions.

Geneva's first appearance on the historical stage came 23 centuries ago when it was a fortified town, taken by the Romans in 129 B. C., and known to Julius Caesar. It led an uneasy existence for a thousand years or more, was attached to Burgundy for a time, and became an outlying town of the German empire in 1033. It was a hotbed of church disputes and of feuds between the bishops and the courts of Savoy. With the coming of the reformation the dissensions increased.

In 1536 the Reformed religion was established by law, and a year later that vigorous French-Protestant disputant, John Calvin, called Geneva, where he became the public teacher of theology and the highest authority in the city—giving to it the distinction of being the first Protestant city in the world. Geneva was another name for Calvinism; Geneva was the new theology; Geneva was the center of education for the Protestant youth of Great Britain, France, Germany and Spain.

Later on the zeal of St. Francis de Sales, bishop of Geneva from 1602 to 1622, restored a considerable part of the diocese to Catholicism. Geneva was an independent city for many years, but with the coming of the French revolution the local government was overthrown and a mild reign of terror followed. In 1798 Geneva was a part of French territory. It was restored to independence after Napoleon's overthrow.

In Geneva the Alabama claims arbitration tribunal sat in 1872, and awards for damages caused by the Confederate ships Alabama, Florida and Shenandoah were fixed. In August, 1864, the international conference for establishing rules of amelioration for the sick and wounded in war was held. It adopted the present Red Cross emblem. Twelve European states and Persia were represented. A second series of rules of a similar character were prepared in the city in 1868. The gathering of 1864 was virtually the beginning of the present Red Cross organization.

2,000,000 BABIES ARE NOW WEIGHED

Children's Bureau Will Tell Mothers What Is Best to Do for Little Ones.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Weighing of more than 2,000,000 babies, establishment of many new health centers to advise mothers on the care of their children, and stimulation of the movement to keep children in school and provide them adequate recreation, are reported today by the children's bureau as some of the results of its children's year campaign.

More than 11,000,000 women participated in the activities of the year, which was inaugurated last April 6, the first anniversary of America's declaration of war. It was planned to save at least 100,000 of the 300,000 children who die annually of preventable diseases.

The first activity of the year was a test of children under two years of age whether they were not up to standards of weight and height for their ages. Nearly 7,000,000 records were issued, of which more than 2,000,000 have been tabulated, with others yet to be turned in. A number of communities have undertaken a second test this spring to include children missed in the first and also to note improvement in those previously registered.

Need for preventive work on behalf of children was said to have been emphasized by the information obtained in the test. According to reports received from state child welfare chairmen of the Council of National Defense, communities in 24 states have employed public health nurses during the year. From ten of these states a total of 137 new nurses had been reported. One hundred and thirty-four children's health centers to which mothers may go for expert advice concerning the best means of caring for their children have been established during children's year in communities as a result of the year. From 16 states the establishment of new playgrounds has been reported.

Against Child Labor

Forty-three states, New York city and the District of Columbia are engaged in a campaign to prevent boys and girls from going to work before they have the training they need for successful and happy lives. "Back to school" and "stay in school" are the slogans of this drive. A number of communities have provided scholarship funds to enable children of needy parents to continue their education after they reach the legal working age. At least one such scholarship for each of the 281,000 schoolhouses in the United States is the goal that has been set.

Although children's year is officially over, plans are under way in several states to make every year a children's year. A new consciousness of the value of the child and his need for good health, wholesome play, adequate schooling and protection from premature work is said to be indicated by laws contemplated by the states. These include many bills for the protection of children.

The children's bureau has planned a conference with foreign experts who have had a part in the work done by European countries for the protection of children during the stress of war. The conference will consist of two distinct parts: First, a small working committee of American authorities to be invited by the secretary of labor, and members of the bureau staff who will meet informally with the foreign guests at Washington during the week of May 6; second, a series of regional conferences in various parts of the country at which the minimum of standards can be continued under local auspices and with reference to local conditions.

NEWSPAPER MEN ARE POPULAR NOW IN PARIS

PARIS, May 21. (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Newspaper correspondents accredited to the peace conference are more popular than beautiful millionaire debutantes in their first season. Queens, counts, princes, lords, ladies, ambassadors, ministers, premiers, presidents, would-be presidents, peace delegates and plain citizens who are unique in being mere messieurs shower the correspondents with invitations to teas, dinners, luncheons and occasionally to audiences which have no social disguise. American correspondents are in special demand. Everybody wants America's ears. Three social secretaries and a squad of motor dispatchers would be required to avoid social errors and land a correspondent promptly at all functions to which he is invited. And he would have no time for anything so prosaic as the plenary sessions of the peace conference.

Everything from Belshazzar to the Bolshieviki is discussed at these social functions. Correspondents are whisked from New Guinea to Nova Zembla without warning. Ptolemy and Pompey are resurrected and discussed at such length that one might suspect they speak before canning clubs and girls' county fairs and club meetings, and they do it all without tripping over the magic circle surrounding Southern women.

They realize that their problem is one of gradual development and expansion rather than convulsional dislocation. They are lining up on their side—working through community labor boards, Y. W. C. A. activities and civic betterment organization—many of the social and intellectual leaders of their communities. In a thriving Kentucky city all other agencies for placing women have agreed to close their doors with the opening of the United States employment service.

No effort has been made in the South, except here and there in a busy center, to replace men by women in industry. It has been, and probably will be for months to come, a gradual absorption and assimilation of workers in lines of work that women can do acceptably.

Discussions of the near Eastern questions are much the same, whether they be in the drawing room of the prince of Hedjaz or the meetings of the big five at the Quai d'Orsay. They are reminiscent of weary class-room days with Homer, Herodotus and Virgil. Efforts to interest busy men in antiquity seem futile. Delegates doze through the exposition of ancient history and correspondents long for brief statements throwing light upon the recent history and aspirations of the various peoples who have lived in this favored for centuries along the shores of the Mediterranean.

SOUTHERN WOMEN ARE CO-OPERATING IN WORK

WASHINGTON, May 21.—In spite of the fact that women's divisions of the United States employment service in the South have been but recently organized, the women are giving a good account of themselves. What these employment service workers of the South lack in experience they make up in enthusiasm, and they are putting over some wise stunts that their sisters in other parts of the country might use. Without seeking any marked publicity they seem to be getting the lion's share. There's the crackle and snap of a live wire running through the line that links them up with the public. They're out for a top-column position on the woman's page of country weeklies and farm papers; they send representatives to
